THE RIGHT TO BE SICK WITHOUT PUNISHMENT

After AMSAODD's and the AMA's recent official recognition of drug dependence as a disease, observers speculated about the economic implications--particularly the possible effect on expansion or extension of third party payments.

AMSAODD New York:

But there was little if any discussion about the impact that this stance of organized medicine might have on the disturbing trend to re-stigmatize drug-takers and to tout punishment over treatment. Yet the "drug dependence as disease" stance may well exert its greatest influence in just that context.

The signs of puniton are being posted everywhere. Government officials use the slogan "zero tolerance" to establish prevention goals. Calls to come down hard on the demand side of the equation are seen in arrests, in intimidation through testing, and in proposing such approaches as being preferable to education or treatment--or even as a form of education or treatment. Drug users, including alcoholics, are again being characterized in newspaper columns as weak-willed, perverse, or morally unfit.

The current climate has been shaped by the pervasiveness of the AIDS epidemic, by the override of cost containment, and through deepening frustration over inability to make significant inroads on illegal drug supplies. Despite the gloomy prospect, however, patienthood is not without its allies, who now have an added string to their bow and a chance to use it. How? By taking an active part in the White House Conference on a Drug Free America next February.

Just as important as attending the national White House conference will be participation in the regional meetings to help to shape its agenda. We need to make sure that treatment issues are not trampled by the stampede to get tough. (See p. 10 for information about regional meetings.)

There may be no universal right to treatment, but there is a right to be sick without being thrown into jail or otherwise persecuted or maligned. That is the true message of "drug dependence as disease" and we now have the opportunity to carry it even unto the highest places.

E. M. Steindler
AMSAODD Executive Director

On Sept. 23, ADPA (Alcohol and Drug Problems of North America) presented an award to AMSAODD for its certification program, its work on AIDS, and its efforts to persuade the AMA to adopt the concept this year that drug dependence is a disease. Margaret Bean-Bayog, president, accepted the gold cup on behalf of AMSAODD at ADPA'S 38th annual meeting in St. Louis.

Deadline to apply for the 1988 AMSAODD certification exam will be Feb. 1, 1988.

Applications will be mailed to AMSAODD members on Dec. 1, 1987. An extension of this deadline will be made for anyone not passing the 1987 exam who wishes to apply for the 1988 exam.

In 1988, the required "one year full-time (or one year FTE) involvement in the field of alcohol and/or drug dependency" will be:

--involvement must be in clinical care of patients, education, research, or administration.

--at least 50% of the time must be clinical care of patients.

--the FTE must be accumulated within the five years immediately preceding the year of the application.

Beginning in 1988, three letters of reference will be required: one from a director of clinical service or official of a medical society, and two from physicians in applicant's medical community that attest to his/her one-year involvement in CD field.

Reminder: no exam in 1989.

(Anthony B. Radcliffe, MD, chair)

BOARD CONSIDERING AMENDMENTS TO
CONSTITUTION AND BYLAWS

A necessary 75% of the AMSAODD board was not present in New Orleans Sept. 20 to approve proposed changes in constitution and in bylaws. Consequently, board will vote by mail on proposed amendments.

Amendments will go to the entire membership for ratification following the vote by the board.

107 responded to the new name survey published in July Newsletter. Results of the straw vote poll:

59--American Medical Society on Addictions.

37--American Society on Addiction Medicine.

11--American Medical Society on Alcoholism & Other Drug Dependencies.

Name change is a suggested constitutional amendment.

(Max A. Schneider, MD, chair)

AMSAODD has over 2800 members including some who have not yet paid 1987 dues.

Largest regions: Southeast with 563; Midwest and California with 455 and 437 respectively.

Re states: California surged from 289 to 437 in past 15 months; Mississippi from 20 to 35, Texas from 98 to 142, Tennessee from 40 to 70. Wisconsin, Florida, Michigan, Maryland, also show rapid growth. "Maybe they have something to tell us?" suggests Dr. Bissell.

In two years, Canada has jumped from 45 to 79, but International has dropped from 40 to 19.

(LeClair Bissell, MD, chair)

AMSAODD AIDS CONFERENCE
SET FOR FEBRUARY

Program for Second National AIDS and Chemical Dependency Forum 1988 in Phoenix, AZ, Feb. 18-20 is all set. Watch for announcements to be mailed soon.

(Larry Siegel, MD, chair)

OTHER NEWS FROM AMSAODD BOARD

Certification Exam: AMSAODD's scoring policies for 1987 exam will be the same as in 1986: examinee must achieve a score 1.2 standard deviations or less from the mean, and must pass each of the two sections of the exam (multiple choice questions and patient management problems).

Proportional emphasis in exam will remain 50% alcohol, 50% other drugs; 50% clinical, 50% basic science.

(Sidney Schnoll, MD, chair)

Credentialing: 716 AMSAODD members applied to sit for the certification exam to be given Dec. 5, 1987. Not accepted: 26, most because they did not meet the requirement of one year full-time involvement in the CD field.

Of those certified after the 1986 exam, 32% were family practice, 28% psychiatry, 24% internal medicine; 54% office based, 39% full-time staff at hospitals in addictions services.

Executive Committee: met July 25-26 in Chicago. Discussed AMSAODD's perceived strengths and needs/weaknesses, new committee structure (see below), internal management, state/regional options, clinical issues committee, liason/networking issues, environmental issues. Proposal that AMSAODD committee structure be revised and streamlined: Most committees would be in one of five sections, and would report to section chairs, who in turn would report to the AMSAODD Board and/or its executive committee. The five sections would be: Certification, Medical Education, Treatment & Clinical Issues, Membership Services, Public Affairs.

EXCITEMENT MOUNTS IN FAST-PACED REVIEW COURSE

"I took the AMSAODD certification exam last year," declared Anne Geller, MD, chair of AMSAODD's Review Course Committee, in her welcoming speech to 170 registrants at the Review Course in New Orleans. "It's difficult for most of us even to contemplate taking this exam. Many have never taken a multiple-choice exam, and most not for many years. This Review Course is designed to help you all to pass."

Dr. Geller's speech on Sept. 17 initiated an intense, two-plus days of lectures, case discussions, open AA meetings, and pretests covering the entire chemical dependency field. Fifteen faculty offered a fast-paced, comprehensive kaleidoscope of clinical highlights, pharmacology, methadone maintenance, recent research, test-taking strategies, epidemiology, diagnosis, managing psychiatric problems, family and addiction, medical management, overdose, and models of treatment in recovery. Each registrant was given a 1987, 394-page AMSAODD Review Course Syllabus.

Everyone took an 18-question multiple-choice pretest the first evening. It included six "Type K Questions"--a multiple true/false format of four answers to a statement or question which can be combined in five possible ways. Type K Questions traditionally give physicians the most trouble on written board and licensure exams; a handout for those unfamiliar with this format was an article "How to Score Better on Those Tough Type K Questions." Overall scores were posted. Results (self-scored) in the New Orleans group: 74% got 12 or more answers right; 21% got 15 or more; no one answered all 18 correctly.

Registrants sat at assigned tables of about ten each for the whole course. Fourteen facilitators--one at each table--led the five case discussions, and answered other questions throughout the course.

The atmosphere seemed tense as they registered. Usually, AMSAODD physicians are cheerful--even ebullient--when they arrive at a conference. Many are in recovery and know one another. Most of the rest work with alcoholic patients and/or have chemical dependents in their personal lives. But on the afternoon of Sept. 17 in New Orleans this group of over 170 physicians was clearly uneasy.

Why? Fear. Fear of the AMSAODD certification exam on Dec. 5, which was the reason most had come. But what were they afraid of?

The following answers were given by physicians who wished to remain anonymous:

"I'm a medical director in a CD unit, so I work with chemically dependent patients. I teach CD. Even so, I would not have felt confident about taking the certification exam without going through this Review Course first. I believe as of now that if I study the Syllabus very carefully I have a good chance to pass. But I'm still nervous about it, because I haven't taken a test for twenty years."--Oklahoma

"I'm pleased to know that I know more than I thought I knew. The course is very well organized, and the Syllabus most helpful. The practice test and case discussions are very useful. Having facilitators was an excellent idea, to guide case discussions and share their experiences in taking AMSAODD or other exams. I'm most fearful of the K-Type multiple-choice questions. I missed the test-taking lecture last night [the lures of New Orleans cuisine!--Ed.] and deeply regret that now."--Texas

"I didn't get my application to AMSAODD in time to take the exam this December, but the Review Course was terrific: intensively comprehensive. I'll take it again next year, before I take the 1988 exam. That gives me an extra year to study!"--Florida

"I was scared about taking the exam until I came here and talked to some doctors who took it last year. Now I'm not afraid."--Texas

"I'm less nervous about the exam now that I've taken the Course. It's a good way to get an overview of what I need to do to prepare. AMSAODD ought to put out a Yearbook on Alcoholism like other specialties have."--Minnesota

"I learned more from going to those two [open] AA meetings than I did from any of the lectures. I'd never been to an AA meeting before."--Florida

And from two physicians who previously passed the certification exam:

"I took the exam three years ago in California. I've always been afraid of failing any exam. I was particularly afraid because I was president of the California Society for the Treatment of Alcoholism & Other Drug Dependencies, and how it would look if I failed."--Max A. Schneider, MD, (Facilitator)

"I think we tend to take exams the same way all our lives. No matter how long we're out, we still revert back. I crammed the night before exams in medical school, I did the same for boards, and also for the California Society exam (pre-AMSAODD certification exam).

"The Review Course is very important. We cover areas where a physician might have less experience. I recommend target reading to get an idea of what areas need further study.

"We didn't have Type K Questions when I was in medical school (early 1960s). The patient management practices sections will also be new to many--and the material in the PMP's. The Review Course helps doctors to learn how to think each question through.

"Would you believe that I missed a Pretest question that was taken right out of my own book because I overthought the question?"--David E. Smith, MD, (Faculty)

AMSAODD SYLLABUS

The 394-page Review Course Syllabus is not only packed with medical/scientific information, but physicians reading the book will know that it contains, in the judgment of the AMSAODD Review Course Committee, the most up-to-date, valid, and pertinent information in the CD field.

Contents include nosology, pharmacology, epidemiology, etiology, diagnosis, intervention, management of emergencies, sub-acute care, medical complications, psychiatric disorders, recovery, recommended reading. Some material was written specifically for this Syllabus; some p. 8 consists of reprinted medical/scientific articles.

For those not registered in a Review Course, the Syllabus can be purchased: $35 AMSAODD members, $45 non-members, from the New York AMSAODD office. Discounts in quantities over ten.

Tapes of each Review Course can be purchased on-site, or from Infomedix, phone toll-free 1-800-367-9286. In California: 1-800-992-9286.

Space was still available at press time at the Review Courses in San Francisco Oct. 22-24, and in Washington, DC, Nov. 5-7. Phone Calif. Society (415) 428-9091 re San Francisco course; phone AMSAODD New York (212) 206-6770 for information about Washington course. It is not necessary to be registered for the exam to take the Review Course.
